SUBJECT: COMMERCE A/S LASH SECURES EXEMPTION FROM DAMAN

11. This is an action cable. See para 3.

12. Assistant Secretary of Commerce William Lash June 29 called on Dr. Ahmad Hindawi, head of the Jordan Institute of Standards and Metrology (JISM), the lead Jordanian agency for the DAMAN product conformity pre-shipment inspection program. In response to A/S Lash's reiteration of U.S. objections to the DAMAN pre-inspection program, Hindawi agreed in principle to an alternative -- what he termed a risk-based, post-shipment system. It would include possible physical inspection, review of documentation, and/or testing, he noted. He was relying on the products having been tested by appropriate U.S. labs with high standards, he said. He agreed that the risk assessment would be multi-layered. He agreed to an interim exemption for U.S.-produced products pending completion of studies of legal and technical issues related to the risk-based system.

13. ACTION REQUEST: Embassy seeks guidance on the approach to be taken with JISM on an exemption system for U.S.-based products. An "interim" exemption would be non-binding on the USG; should it prove ineffective we could ask to cancel it. On the other hand, if it proved beneficial, it could last forever. Embassy believes that we should start now to make the case for a permanent exemption with the Ministry of Industry and Trade, and seeks guidance on the points we should make. Charge meets with Hindawi on July 21.

14. A/S Lash did not have the opportunity to review this cable.
